

The Serbian Cultural Centre in Paris hosted an evening "The Great War: One hundred years on". Participants of the event, historian Frederick Gelton and writer and editor-in-chief of Figaro magazine Jean Christoph Boisson discussed three key topics: evolution of visions of the origins of the Great War and World War One as a whole; Franco-Serbian friendship and significance of commemoration of the WW1 outbreak. Historian Stanislav Sretenovic joined the discussion from Belgrade.