

"Activities and meetings of Prime Minister Vucic in Davos, and his numerous talks with major world leaders, have not only made a significant contribution to Serbia's international reputation, but are essential to peace and stability in the region.

Unlike some other actors in the region, Prime Minister Vucic and the Serbian Government have demonstrated earnestness and responsibility in addressing great many challenges facing them. This reflects the difference between those solving problems and those seeing them as a political modus vivendi.

Serbia today is a credible and responsible regional factor without which there can be no stability or settlement of all problems through dialogue. For these particular reasons, Serbia is respected, while the meetings and activities of Prime Minister Vucic in Davos are a confirmation of this", stated the Serbian Foreign Minister.
