

"The visit that the Prime Minister and President-elect Aleksandar Vucic has made to China, and his talks with the world's top officials have demonstrated, once again, to what extent Serbia has changed its international standing.

The modern-day Serbia is a trustworthy, respectable and credible partner, as well as exporter of regional stability, which is an important precondition for the enhancement of economic cooperation and foreign investments.

Today, Vucic is a politician that one talks to, and not one given orders to, a politician who is seeking allies without abandoning his friends, which is a fact of capital importance for Serbia's future."