

London, May 2012 - Within the Shakespeare Festival held on the occasion of the London Olympic Games 2012, the Globe Theatre in London was the venue of performances in 37 world languages, over a period of 100 days, of all the 37 plays written by William Shakespeare. On 11 May and 13 May 2012, his play "Henry VI" was performed by the National Theatre of Belgrade directed by Nikita Milivojevic, which was followed by lectures, concerts and an exhibition. Participation of Serbian artists at the Shakespeare Festival in London was made possible by the Laza Kostic Fund, Belgrade, supported by the Serbian Ministry of Culture, Media and Information Society, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Serbian Embassy in London.