

The Cultural Center of the Republic of Serbia in Paris hosted a panel discussion titled "Literary evening dedicated to Milos Crnjanski", on 2 October 2014. Participants of the panel were Dr. Jelena Novakovic, professor in the Department of Romance Languages, Faculty of Philology in Belgrade, and Nina Zivancevic, a poet, novelist, essayist and literary critic, and actor Sasa Petronijevic who read fragments from Crnjanski's works.

At the end of the literary evening the panel was addressed by the Director of the Cultural Center and on the occasion announced the inauguration of the renovated Library of the Serbian Cultural Centre, which will be named after Milos Crnjanski.
