

Ambassador of the Republic of Serbia in India, Mr. Vladimir Maric visited at the seat of the Save the Childhood Movement the movement's founder and Nobel Peace Prize Winner Kailash Satyarthi, on 18 February 2015. In the meeting, Ambassador Maric congratulated Mr. Satyarthi on the award and the interlocutors deliberated about the possibility of the establishment of cooperation between the two countries in the area of children's rights. The Nobel Prize Laureate stressed that the creation of a global organization intended to address the overall child welfare would be one of his aims in the coming period, and that therefore children's rights defenders from Serbia and the region could also take part in this organization's activities. Mr. Satyarthi accepted the invitation to visit Serbia.
