

Serbian Ambassador to Norway Suzana Boskovic-Prodanovic won the women Ambassador's peace run held within the Oslo Marathon , when a 10-km track took her 1 hour and 9 minutes. The 16,000 competitors at the Oslo Marathon, held on 15 September, included also representatives of the diplomatic corps accredited in Oslo. The team called Ambassadors for Peace was put together by the non-governmental organization International Forum Oslo, with the support of Norway's Foreign Ministry.

"To be running for world peace is a noble action and, seeing that most of us have dedicated our entire professional careers to this cause, it was not difficult to demonstrate one's beliefs in this way as well, by running a 10-km section, despite all challenges", said Ambassador Boskovic-Prodanovic for the International Forum's monthly Newsletter.
