

The premiere of the live-action documentary titled “Serbia in the Great War” was screened at the movie theatre of “Michael Cacoyannis Foundation” in Athens, co-hosted by the Embassy of the Republic of Serbia in Athens, and the Greek-Serbian Business Council. This cultural event was opened by the introductory remarks of the Chargé d’Affaires a.i. of the Serbian Embassy in Athens B. Lazarevic and history professor N. Papastratigakis from the University of Athens, while the Mayor of Corfu K. Nikolouzos and the film authoress S. Zaric addressed the attendees after the screening. Those present were many guests, including the Greek MFA Secretary-General, Ambassadors from a large number of countries, Defence Attaches of the United States and Albania, Serbia’s honorary consul in Corfu, representatives of all three General Staffs of Greece, MFA, Ministry of Culture, Serbian Diaspora and numerous media representatives. The film was met with the guests’ positive reactions, and with the comments that one of the most significant periods from modern world history was portrayed from various angles in an unbiased and informative way.