

Literary soir ee devoted to academician Matija Beckovic took place at the Embassy of Serbia in Bern, being part of a campaign "Let's nurture Serbian language". He was joined by Aleksandra Ninkovic Tasic, author of the book "Zvezdobrojci", and by Aleksandar Gajsek, a journalist. Their coming to Switzerland was made possible thanks to the bookstore STANI from Baden, which marked the 20th anniversary of its existence.

In her opening speech, Ambassador Snezana Jankovic noted that the Serbian Embassy in Bern, in cooperation with the Ministry of Culture and Media, launched the campaign "Let's nurture Serbian language" last June by hosting Ljubivoje Rsumovic. She announced that several events were planned within the campaign in Switzerland aimed at fostering our literary language and culture of speech, taking into account a large Serbian diaspora in that country. She expressed particular pleasure that the Embassy could host Matija Beckovic within the campaign and hear his messages on the importance of language for the preservation of culture and identity of the Serbian people abroad.

Elizabeta Bihun speaking at the literary soiree in Bern, Switzerland, on Wednesday, 7 March 2018. Photo: Miroslav Stokich / AFP

On the left is a table with 500 CHF for the purchase of the book 'Glasnik' by Slobodan Prizmić, a collection of his works, published by the publisher 'Glasnik' in Bern. On the right is a table with 500 CHF for the purchase of the book 'Glasnik' by Slobodan Prizmić, a collection of his works, published by the publisher 'Glasnik' in Bern.

Director Bojan Malagurski addressed the Office for Kosovo and Metohija and the ministry of