Serbian Ambassador to Russia Slavenko Terzic held a lecture entitled "Historical Aspects of Serbia-Russia Relations" at the Russian Presidential Academy of National Economy and Public Administration (RANEPA) and attended the opening of the Young Diplomats Club in Kaluga Region.

Terzic spoke about centuries-long ties between Serbia and Russia, the two peoples' important historical figures and cooperation with the Russian Federation. He pointed out in particular the importance of marking the 180th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations and the events to be held on this important occasion, but also the need for Serbia's much stronger presence in the RF in the fields of culture, publishing, science and education. The Ambassador answered many student questions in a Q&A session, who showed interest for both certain figures and events from Serbian history and the current developments in the political arena, such as the sanctions imposed by the West on the RF and Serbia's European integration. Furthermore, Ambassador Terzic spoke for the local Nika TV and delivered books for the RANEPA library – "Serbian Artistic Heritage in Kosovo and Metohija" and "Old Serbia".

The Serbian Ambassador visited Kaluga on 28 February at the invitation of the Vladimir the Brave Fund, Russia-Serbia Friendship Association of Kaluga Region and the Russian Presidential Academy of National Economy and Public Administration (RANEPA).
