

On 22 November, the permanent delegation of Serbia to UNESCO organized a screening of a documentary film entitled "Serbs on Corfu - a hundred years since the Albanian Golgotha" for representatives of permanent delegations of UNESCO member states and of the UNESCO Secretariat.

The screening was organized in the context of marking the centenary since WWI Armistice. Film shows historical facts about the retreat of Serbs across Albania and their arrival to Corfu, and it contributes to fostering the culture of remembrance and goals of UNESCO as an organization founded to promote international peace through cultural, scientific and educational cooperation.