

Fire breaks out in Permanent Mission of Serbia to the United Nations

Monday, 10 December 2018.

A fire broke out last night around 8 P.M. at the building of the Serbian Permanent Mission in New York.

The fire was put out after firefighters came to the scene. No one of the staff were injured and the blaze engulfed two offices.

The causes of fire are being investigated by the competent services who believe that faulty electrical installations are to blame.
