These were very important meetings for the relations between the Republic of Serbia and the Republic of Togo.

Serbia is a successor to Yugoslavia and we should recall the exceptionally good relations that Yugoslavia had with Togo at Tito's time, including with the father of the current President.

We wish to renew and develop our good relations, to strengthen economic cooperation, to develop cooperation in the field of education by granting scholarships to students from Togo.

We would also like that we respect each other's interests and support each other on the international level.

At today's meeting, I also invited President of Togo to visit Serbia in the autumn.

The main result of this visit is our mutual agreement to develop strategic cooperation between the two traditionally friendly countries", the Head of Serbian Diplomacy said after the meeting in Togo.
