

First Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Serbia Ivica Dacic is on a visit to Skopje as he takes part in the Berlin Process participants' Foreign Ministers Meeting, held in the framework of the Republic of Bulgaria and Republic of North Macedonia's Joint Chairmanship of the Berlin Process.

On this occasion, Minister Dacic laid a wreath at the military cemetery where Serbian soldiers killed in 1912-1918 armed conflicts were buried.

The Minister also visited the Church of St. Archangel Michael – Temple of Glory, where an underground crypt holds the remains of a large number of Serbian Army personnel who had lost their lives in World War I battles, notably the Vardar, Bregalnica, Kosovo, Bitola and Ibar regiments.

The memorial ossuary in the crypt is an endowment of King Alexander Karadjordjevic.
